I. Residential Art

For us, art is more than a final touch. It is an intrinsic part of a home, something that represents an owner and elevates a design. Creating complete and innovative living spaces that always think ahead is what moves us, in such a way that the process of design does not just include surfaces and layouts, but also explores the latest design trends to bring conceptual ideas to life in powerful ways. We understand every home is different and the residential art displayed is a reflection of an individual aesthetic and personal pride.

Partnership with 2B

With a diverse selection of art works from international and local artists, bespoke statement pieces to choose from that can be tailored to a residential project – mural wall art, collectible Bearbrick figures that add vibrancy to the living room and value to your collection, figurative or abstract paintings in the bedroom, we aim to offer you meaningful and unique art from the most prominent contemporary artists.

We're thrilled to have partnered with 2B Gallery, a Mallorca-based urban contemporary art gallery supplier of unique Art pieces, sculptures, limited edition prints and Bearbrick figures, from established international and national artists.

Buying art is an investment
for the future

Art It is not another commodity that outlives its usefulness with an expiring shelf life. In fact, art gets better with time - Often increasing in value. The purchase of art is an investment in the artist as well as the artwork. When we support artists, we empower their creativity which the world needs more of.

In our increasingly visual culture, images hold more power than ever before and artists are uniquely placed to transform the conversation and translate it into action, using their skills to create work which can influence a wider movement.

Art collecting and investment is no longer limited only to the wealthy elite and buying from emerging artists means you'll probably be one of their first collectors. There is Art to suit every budget and style. The art market is not highly correlated with the stock market or bond market. That's exactly what investors should be looking for when diversifying their assets. No matter what the financial markets are doing - moving up or trending down - the art market isn't affected very much.

There are several factors you should consider when assessing an artwork, all of which will contribute to its future value. Appreciation factors include the rarity of the piece, the notoriety of the artwork or artist, the authenticity and condition of the item, and the cultural significance of the piece. How rare a piece of artwork is will always impact its future value. The rareness of a piece of artwork may also be referred to as the size of the edition. You should be aware that buying and collecting art for financial gain is almost always a long-term investment.
